Market Commentary

Q4-2026 Market Review

Here is the professional market commentary for Q4-2026:

Portfolio Impact

Portfolio Impact Our diversified portfolio delivered a strong performance in Q4, returning +3.75%, outperforming the S&P 500 benchmark by +0.25%, or 25 basis points. This outperformance was primarily attributable to our strategic allocation to growth-oriented US equities, specifically our overweight exposure to the technology sector, which benefited from strong gains in the NASDAQ 100 Index (+5.10%). Our allocation to US small-cap equities, represented by the Russell 2000 Index's +4.00% return, also contributed positively. While fixed income positions provided stability, their more modest returns—with the Aggregate Bond Index returning +0.75% and our core holdings like BND (+0.70%) and VGIT (+0.60%)—acted as a slight drag on overall relative performance compared to the robust equity market.

Outlook & Positioning

Q4 2026 Market Review US equity markets concluded the fourth quarter of 2026 with positive momentum, as the S&P 500 Index advanced by a solid +3.50%. This performance was primarily driven by resilient corporate earnings, a moderating inflation outlook, and sustained consumer spending. Sector leadership was observed in Technology, which surged by +6.80%, and Consumer Discretionary, gaining +5.20%. Defensive sectors also saw strong interest, with Utilities rising +4.50% and Real Estate appreciating by +4.20%, benefiting from expectations of stable interest rates. Internationally, the MSCI EAFE Index delivered a respectable +2.80%, though a relatively strong US Dollar tempered some of these gains for US investors. The Federal Reserve maintained its cautious stance, holding the federal funds rate steady throughout the quarter, signaling a data-dependent approach for potential policy adjustments in the coming year.
