Market Commentary

Q4-2025 Market Review

Here is your professional market commentary for Q4-2025:

Portfolio Impact

Portfolio Impact Our diversified portfolio generated a return of +2.70% for the quarter, outperforming the S&P 500's +2.00% by 70 basis points. This relative outperformance was primarily driven by strong selection in individual equities, notably our holding in Johnson & Johnson (JNJ) which surged +12.2%, and Apple (AAPL) with a +6.2% gain, alongside our broader US equity exposure via VTI returning +2.4%. While our core fixed income positions, such as BND (+0.6%) and VGIT (+0.8%), provided ballast against volatility, their moderate returns were outpaced by the robust equity performance, contributing positively to the overall portfolio's risk-adjusted return.

Outlook & Positioning

Outlook & Positioning Looking ahead to 2026, we anticipate continued economic moderation with potential for the Federal Reserve to maintain a data-dependent stance on interest rates, possibly signaling gradual easing later in the year. Our portfolio remains strategically positioned for long-term growth, emphasizing high-quality equities across various sectors that demonstrate strong fundamentals and sustainable earnings, while maintaining appropriate duration in our fixed income allocations. We maintain a tactical 5% cash position to ensure liquidity and capitalize on opportunistic market dislocations, with our next scheduled rebalancing set for early Q1 2026 to ensure alignment with your financial objectives.

Financial Planning Notes

Planning Recommendations

Sarah is well-positioned to achieve her retirement goals, with her current savings trajectory indicating a 15% surplus over projected needs. This positive outlook provides flexibility, but continued vigilance and optimization will further strengthen her long-term security. To enhance her retirement readiness, we recommend increasing her 401(k) contributions to at least the employer match, ideally aiming to maximize her annual limit. Additionally, please review your investment allocations within all accounts to ensure they align with your current risk tolerance and long-term growth objectives. We advise scheduling an annual comprehensive review to assess any changes in your financial situation or goals. This will ensure your plan remains optimized and on track for future success.

2026 Action Items

- Fund 2026 Roth IRA contributions for both spouses (up to $7,000 each) as early as possible in January to maximize tax-free compounding.
- Review beneficiary designations on all retirement accounts and life insurance policies.
- Confirm withholding elections are appropriate following the 2025 tax return.

Next Review

Your next scheduled quarterly review meeting is tentatively set for mid-June 2026.

Important Disclosures

Past Performance. Past performance is not indicative of future results. All investments involve risk, including the possible loss of principal. Investment return and principal value will fluctuate so that an investor's account, when liquidated, may be worth more or less than originally invested.

Performance Reporting. Performance is presented net of advisory fees and is calculated using a time-weighted return methodology. Returns for periods greater than one year are annualized. Benchmark returns are for the S&P 500 Total Return Index, which is unmanaged, does not incur fees, and is not available for direct investment.

Benchmark. The S&P 500 is provided for general comparative purposes only and may not represent the specific investment objectives, risks, or fees associated with the client's portfolio.

Advisory Fees. Wealth Management Firm charges an annual advisory fee on assets under management, billed quarterly. Fees are debited directly from client accounts and are reflected in the net-of-fee performance figures presented in this report.
